

The National Library does not charge fees for issuing licences for using digital reproductions of its collections by third parties. Due to the above, the National Library cannot issue permissions for their publication, nor is it responsible for the subsequent use of the materials reproduced. The National Library asks, however, that users who want to publish such materials provide information on where the original is located.

Additional information

- The National Library carries out photocopying and scanning services exclusively of materials from its own collections.
- Special collection materials are: manuscripts, incunabula, early printed books, iconographic as well as cartographic materials.
- The scope of the Service does not infringe the regulations of the Act of 4 February 1994 on Copyright and Related Rights (Journal of Laws, Dz.U. 2006, no. 90, item 631, with subsequent amendments), in particular, according to the provisions of this Act on the permissible uses of copyrighted works.
- The National Library does not issue permits or licences for using digital reproductions in publications, and does not charge any separate fees for it.
- An additional fee will be charged for sending materials by regular mail.
- Requested materials may also be picked up in person at the Reference Office.
- Special collection materials may be copied only with permission of the head of the appropriate department of the Library.
- In the case of nonstandard requests and the requests for more than 20 thousand scans (frames or items) the price will be determined on a case-by-case basis, after calculating the estimated cost of the service.
